Chart records, interviews, and psychological testing results were integrated into a comprehensive report with diagnostic impressions, case conceptualizations, and treatment recommendations. Report findings were presented in client and family team meetings.
- 2) Comprehensive psychoeducational assessments for residential children to assist in determining special education eligibility for learning disability, emotional disability, or other health impairment. Chart records, interviews, and psychoeducational testing results were integrated into a comprehensive report with special education eligibility criteria. Report findings were presented during clients' IEP meetings to families, service providers, and school districts.
- 3) Intake assessments for children referred for mental health services to assist in determining diagnoses and treatment plans. Caregivers and service providers were interviewed about the presenting problem and relevant background information to determine medical necessity. Clients' histories, strengths, and risks were summarized while considering cultural and environmental factors contributing to the presenting problem. DSM-IV-TR five axes diagnoses and observable, measurable goals were made.
- 4) Therapeutic services for children to work towards the goals developed in the intake assessment. Services under this category included client and family engagement, individual therapy for clients (i.e., cognitive behavioral therapy, play therapy), family therapy, life skills training, and connecting families with community resources.
- 5) Psychological consultations involving the scoring and interpretation of assessment results collected by other clinicians. Findings were integrated into psychological consultations and discussed with the referring clinicians to determine initial diagnostic impressions and treatment recommendations.

Externship: Orange County Corrections Department (Fall 2006 - Spring 2007)
